 IPHI CHIP TAG
 Conference Call

 July 7, 2009
 Pamela S. Gillam, MPA

Today's Objectives:

- To understand the concept of collaboration, when to do it and specifically the strategy of collaborative leadership
- To understand the six key practices of collaborative leadership
- To assess one's strength

PLEASE NOTE:

It doesn't matter what you call it—team, partnership, collaboration— it takes a lot of time to form and are really tough to sustain.

Networking – Exchanging information for mutual benefit.

Coordinating – Networking and altering activities to achieve a common purpose.

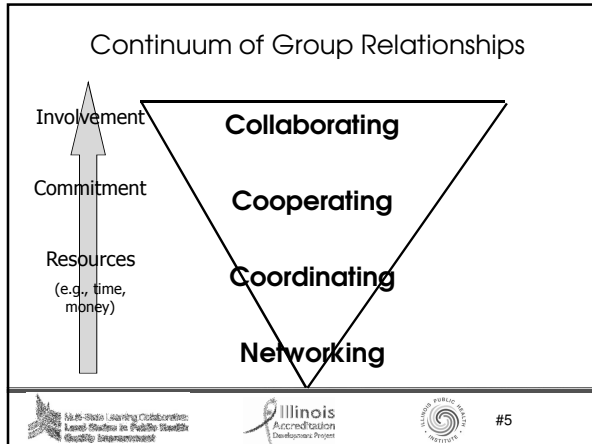

Cooperating – Coordinating and sharing or pooling resources.

Collaborating – Cooperating and enhancing the capacity of another for mutual benefit to achieve a common purpose.

Competing – Exchanging some amount of information, but not “proprietary” information; altering activities to meet own needs; sharing resources minimally or with a “hidden agenda.”

What is Collaborative Leadership?

- The processes, activities, and relationships in which a group and its members engage in collaboration.
- Collaboration is defined as "exchanging information and sharing or pooling resources for mutual benefit to achieve a common purpose."

Why is Collaborative Leadership Important?

- Most public health problems are complex, interdependent, and messy.
- These type of problems require a systems approach with diverse input and multiple perspectives.
- Many sectors need to "own" the solution for it to be successfully implemented.

What is a Collaborative Leader?

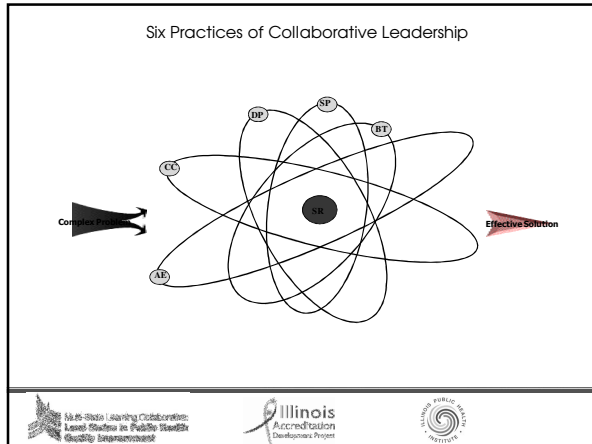

Someone who safeguards and promotes the collaborative process.

Safeguarding the Collaborative Process

- Understand the environment in which the team works
- Create clarity
- Build Trust
- Share Power
